College of Information and Computer Sciences

University of Massachusetts Amherst

What

- Learn fundamental principles in natural language processing, and how to practically use them
- Hands-on experience: data collection and implementation
- Appreciation of basic linguistic issues
- Know when NLP works and when it doesn't
- Course topics may include: text processing, corpus data, probabilistic language models, syntax models, word embeddings, text classification, topic analysis, sentiment analysis, question answering, deep learning methods, language generation...

Requirements

- (10%) Quizzes / exercises (approx. weekly)
- (30%) Problem sets
 - Written: math and concepts
 - Programs: in Python
- (20%) In-class Midterm
- (40%) Final projects (groups of 2-3)
[Choose a topic, or select a suggested topic]
 - Project Proposal
 - Progress Report
 - In-class presentations
 - Final Report

TA: Erica Cai

- We will hold weekly office hours - to be announced

Resources

- Webpage will have lectures/readings and links to other sites
 - Reading for Thursday: J&M Ch 2 (except 2.5)
- Piazza for communication
- Gradescope for turning in assignments
- Video recordings in Echo360 (will try to link from webpage)

Upcoming

- Exercise #1: Class survey, on Gradescope.
Due tomorrow
- First homework coming next week
- Let Erica know if you can't access Gradescope or Piazza

Rewrite the following paragraph in the style of a breezy, readable airport book:

A spectre is haunting Europe — the spectre of communism. All the powers of old Europe have entered into a holy alliance to exorcise this spectre: Pope and Tsar, Metternich and Guizot, French Radicals and German police-spies.
